Small business is vitally important to our economy and local jobs, with more than 4.5 million Australians employed in over 2 million small businesses.

The Turnbull Government's recent decision to extend unfair contract term protections to small business and make it easier to access finance builds on the Government's support for small business through our recent small business tax cuts.

Encouraging new businesses and innovation

Small business is the engine room of our economy and we are committed to encouraging more Australians to start a business.

- ✓ New start-ups can now immediately deduct professional expenses incurred when starting a business.
- ✓ It is now easier and more attractive for companies to attract and retain the best employees through better taxation arrangements for employee share schemes.
- ✓ Company taxes for small business are at their lowest since 1967.
